A Syllabus for Teaching English to Foreigners general directions 1. Plan Book.--Teachers should keep a detailed record of subject matter to be taught. 2. Pupils Note Books.--Every student should receive a note book to be kept in school. In this book the pupil writes his themes, his spelling words, his dictation, his letters. 3. Weekly Program--At the beginning of the term, each teacher should prepare a weekly program based on the time schedule. The last is minutes had better be devoted to oral rather rather than to written work. 4. Blackboard Work.--Pupils are encouraged to come early by find ing some interesting material on the board. As soon as regular class work starts this work is closed. Not more than 15 minutes should be allowed for this extra copying. Other devices to encourage early arrival are: correcting individual errors in composition, reading, speech; returning corrected papers only during the first is minutes; reading a continuous story during these 15 minutes; discussion of personal questions; submitting legal and medical questions to our lawyer and to our physician. organization of classes The best work can only be done when the teacher s energy is concentrated upon a fairly homogeneous group. Grading to secure uniformity on some vital basis is attended with serious difficulties because foreigners enter at irregular times, their progress is not uniform, they become attached to a teacher and because for economic reasons, classes must be consolidated. The most obvious controlling factor in...
