And as the Lord Jesus Christ is the great subject of many psalms, you will learn from the New Testament how to find him every-where in your daily reading. Farewell, my dear boy. Attend to your studies and your health, and, above all, offer up your heart to God. I am your affectionate brother, James. LETTER II. GRATITUDE TO PARENTS. My dear brother, --I write you on this subject thus early in my course of letters, because I think gratitude to parents is the foundation of a great many virtues; and one of the first and most distressing symptoms of a decline from the paths of virtue is the unkind or contemptuous treatment of parents. The first commandment with promise is the command to honour our parents, and our earliest duties are those which we have to render to our father and our mother. You will find counsels on this subject scattered through my letters; but as young people are apt to be impressed by narrative, I will give you a little history, which I am sure you will find interesting. The story is connected with the beautiful engraving at the beginning of these letters. There lived two poor men in a very rough and mountainous country, where they kept their flocks, and cultivated such little spots of earth as they could find among the rocks and crags. It was a region abounding in rapid streams, which poured in torrents from...
