

Federal Historic Preservation Laws (Classic Reprint) (Paperback)

By National Park Service

Forgotten Books, 2017. Paperback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand . Excerpt from Federal Historic Preservation Laws Although Congress created the world s first national park, Yellow stone, in 1872 by setting aside over 2 million acres as a public park under the control of the Secretary of the Interior, the concept of a system to conserve and protect a wide variety of our natural and cultural resources nationwide evolved slowly. A growing interest in preserving not only the great scenic wonders of the American West but the sites and structures associated with early Native American cultures led to passage in 1906 of the Antiquities Act which authorized the President to declare by public proclamation [as national monuments] historic landmarks, historic and prehis toric structures, and other objects of historic or scientific interest. With the creation of the National Park Service in 1916, Congress established a national conservation agency with the primary te sponsibility of promoting and regulating its Federally-owned lands in a manner that would leave them unimpaired for the enjoy ment of future generations. With the enactment of the Historic Sites Act of 1935, the preservation mandate of the National Park Service...
