Lee Anne Wonnacott, 2017. Paperback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand . Everything changes for Kelly Stolter the morning she finds her mother dead from pneumonia. The rug is suddenly jerked out from under her and her two younger siblings, Lola and Colton. Their steady world started to shake. Bills were coming due. The ranch loan on Windy Ridge Ranch must be paid. The tears won't stop. It is still the Wild West in 1850s Southern California. Shifty cattle ranchers rubbed their hands together ready to prey on the seemingly naive young children. Kelly had watched her blue-ribbon cutting horse riding mother and champion rodeo winning father negotiate horse sales all her life. Either she could follow in their footsteps and keep the family going or not. Shady relatives begin to come out of the woodwork to lay claim to the prosperous horse breeding ranch. In an old trunk, under her mother's possessions lay the name of the distant attorney. 135 miles to the south was a longshot but it was the only hope in sight. The Flint Hills family friend knew more than she would tell held secrets behind tight lips. The averted eyes and the cold silences told Kelly there was more history to the family. A letter from a Hattiesburg attorney told of the death of the friendly stranger and the news shocked their world. A scandalous family truth out kept hidden for decades is thrust into the open light of day. Her father, Nick Stolter, had ridden east at the side of a long-time friend in need. Was that man with the green eyes truly a friend or a past partner in crime as others alluded to in discreet whispers? Before he disappeared into the deserts of Arizona,...
