Excerpt: . . . care of separated service members as they transition to veteran status, as well as to the adjudication of disability claims. One of the departments demonstration projects - the Laboratory Data Laboratory Interface Initiative Sharing Interface (LDSI) - is now fully operational and is deployed when Allows VA and DOD to Share local agencies have a business case for its use and sign an agreement. It Lab Resources requires customization for each locality and is currently deployed at nine locations. LDSI currently supports a variety of chemistry and hematology tests, and, at one of the nine locations, anatomic pathology and microbiology tests. Once LDSI is implemented at a facility, the only nonautomated action needed for a laboratory test is transporting the specimens. If a test is not performed at a VA or DOD doctors home facility, the doctor can order the test, the order is transmitted electronically to the appropriate lab (the other departments facility or in some cases a local commercial lab), and the results are returned electronically. Among the benefits of the LDSI interface, according to VA and DOD, are increased speed in receiving laboratory results and decreased errors from manual entry of orders. The LDSI project manager in San Antonio stated that another benefit of the project is the time saved by eliminating the need to rekey orders at processing labs to input the information into the laboratories systems. Additionally, the San Antonio VA facility no longer has to contract out some of its laboratory work to private companies, but instead uses the DOD laboratory....
