Forgotten Books, 2018. Paperback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand . Excerpt from Tipyn O bob, Vol. 15: October, 1917 Brie?y there is very little to be said in favor of beginning to wear a gown. The beautifully uniform appearance which the campus would present, the academic atmosphere, the graceful, ?owing lines, have all been SO often and so eloquently described that no one dares mention them again. Even the more plebeian and less aesthetic facts, that we have all voted to wear gowns, that their constant use would bring poverty upon the Wilson-laundry-family, that they are unparalleled as water proofs, that these four years are the only time they can be worn; even these have failed to incline the undergraduate heart gown-ward. For these other facts remain. Gowns catch in every door, they trip up ten people on every stairway, they Slide down the neck at every step, they trail in every ink well. They make the tall, Slender figure look positively emaciated; and even one who has never seen the picture can well imagine the effect produced by the short and stumpy person who wears a heavy coat in winter and then superimposes a gown. But at least this much can be said for the gown. It gives the beginner in its use something to grumble about in those long harrowing moments between breakfast and nine O clock; and that after all is a greater boon than it seems at first Sight. It is an excellent thing to have a gown to abuse when one must abuse. It spares the room-mate and promotes friendly feelings. But after awhile even this advantage will be taken away. For some unknown reason, everyone who wears a gown steadily for a couple Of weeks comes to...
