Createspace Independent Publishing Platform, 2016. Paperback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand . Have you ever wondered how a group of intelligent, skilled people who are typically successful in other areas of their personal and professional lives can come together on a community board with such poor results? In Mastering the Business of Your Association(TM), real estate attorney Jane Bolin explores new opportunities for board members, community association managers, and their vendors when they choose to run their association like a business. Real estate attorney, founder, lawyer, marketing officer, and productivity coach Jane Bolin presents a new conversation around the way association boards can be run in her new book Mastering the Business of Your Association(TM). In doing so, Bolin hopes to spark a new conversation in the industry and explore a new way of working. Based on decades of experience working as a legal consultant for association boards, Bolin's book asks readers to open themselves to a new way of thinking as she poses a compelling case for running a community association like a business. As a manager, what can you do to provide for your industry? As a developer, what can you progress inside of your community? These are just a few of the questions that Bolin poses to address the possibility of new outcomes. Community association members can't hit the target when they don't know where to aim. Mastering the Business of Your Association(TM) presents a fresh perspective on what it means to be an effective, engaged member of an association board and how and why members should start running themselves like a business. It's the conversation every association board member, attorney, vendor, and manager needs to join. My goal in writing this book was to spark...
