Excerpt: . . . 11 tation, or offering for transportation and interstate commerce, or the sale, offering for sale, or offering for any other type of commercial or public distribution, including release into the environment of prairie dogs and six species of African rodents. In addition, CDC implemented an immediate embargo on the importation of all rodents from Africa. I will note that it is not the first time FDA has exercised its authority under Section 361 of the Public Health Service Act, as Senator Jeffords explained a short time ago. Existing regulations cover various measures, shellfish, turtles, and certain birds. I would like to tell you about some of the specific actions taken by the FDA and others in responding to the outbreak of monkeypox. FDA took many steps to quickly implement the CDC FDA joint order, closely coordinating activities as appropriate, with CDC, APHIS, the U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service, the Department of Homeland Security's Bureau of Customs and Border Protection, and State and local government counterparts. The day the order was issued, Federal Agencies conferred to discuss responsibilities and strategies to discuss roles and responsibilities regarding the joint order. Strategies needed to be developed relating to the control of monkeypox, relating to imports, intra-and interstate movements, inspection of dealers, breeders, pet stores and zoos, quarantine authority, euthanasia and disposition, surveillance of wild animals, and exports. FDA sent the joint order to all State agriculture and health agencies, including State and public health veterinarians and State...
