

Its Time to Stop

By Diane H. McMorrow

Authorhouse. Paperback. Condition: New. 384 pages. Dimensions: 9.0in. x 6.1in. x 1.0in. Something was missing in Sarah's life. . . a void. For as long as she could remember there it was. . . the longing. . . the emptiness. . . the need. As a child and well into her adolescence she was very lonely. She struggled, as most adolescents do, with her sense of identity and her place in the world. Her fragile emergence into adulthood is shattered by the sudden onslaught of a ravaging, chronic illness (Lupus) that initially causes the amputation of her right leg. This enables her to bury the void. . . bury it under her determination to build herself a normal life in spite of the considerable physical disadvantage that she found herself. This determination also enabled her to never really deal with the loss of her limb, her health, or her childhood dreams. The main theme of the story focuses on the relationship between patient (Sarah) and a therapist (Carolyn). During the first five years their relationship was appropriate, professional, and therapeutic with definite boundaries between patient and therapist. For Sarah, Carolyn seemed to have all the answers. She seemed to understand all...
