Excerpt from Annual Report of the Board of Supervisors of the Louisiana State University, for the Year Ending December 31, 1870: Session of 1871 In behalf of the Board of Supervisors of the Louisiana State University, I have the honor to submit the annual report, required by law. The most serious question that now concerns the welfare of the University, is the procuring of quarters adequate to the com fort of its increasing numbers; It is well known, that since the destruction of the college building near Alexandria, the University has been temporarily located in the Asylum of the Deaf, Dumb and Blind, at Baton Rouge. But, although every effort has been made b those having the Asylum in charge to minister to the comfort 3 and convenience of the inmates of the University, their present quarters are entirely too limited to admit of the successful prosecution of their labors. The institution has more matriculates than ever before, and the number would be considerably increased, but its want-of room has not only deterred many other students from entering, but some who had already entered have, on that account, left for their homes. Now this ought not to be, after all the labor and money spent in endeavoring to fill its quarters, its walls should be enlarged to such an extent as to accommodate all who seek instruction within its limits.
