EXTREME PURSUITS: TRAVEL/WRITING IN AN AGE OF GLOBALIZATION (PAPERBACK)DOWNLOAD

The University of Michigan Press, United States, 2009. Paperback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book. This book takes a provocative look at travel - both voluntary and otherwise - in an uncertain world. Extreme Pursuits looks at the new conditions of global travel; at the unease, even paranoia, that underlies them; at the opportunities they offer for alternative identities; and at their oscillation between remembered and anticipated states. Graham Huggan offers a provocative account of what is happening to travel in the age of globalization, a time characterized by extremes of social and political instability in which adrenaline-filled travelers appear correspondingly determined to take risks. It includes discussions of the links between tourism and terrorism, of contemporary modes of disaster tourism, and of the writing that derives from these, but it also confirms the existence of more responsible forms of travel/writing that demonstrate awareness of a chronically endangered world. Extreme Pursuits is the first study of its kind to link travel writing explicitly with structural changes in the global tourist industry. The book makes clear that travel writing can no longer take refuge in the classic distinctions (traveler versus tourist, foreigner versus native) on which it previously depended, and works to redefine travel to include its current manifestations - e.g., deportation, high-risk tourism, and migrant labor. It argues accordingly that the category travel writing must include experimental ethnography and prose fiction; that it should concern itself with other kinds of travel practice, including such things as Holocaust deportation and migrant labor; and that it should encompass representations of travelers, travel practices, and traveling cultures that appear in popular media, especially TV and film.
