Forgotten Books, 2018. Paperback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand . Excerpt from The University Monthly, 1912-1913, Vol. 13 There is one column of figures in the results of the Woolwich and Sandhurst entrance examination, just published, which gives away the case of the public schools more clearly than anything I can say. It gives the figures deducted for bad spelling and writing. Out of a maximum of marks obtainable one boy has had nearly 1000 marks deducted from his total on account of bad spelling and writing. Very many boys lost over 500 marks. That a boy can go through a big public school and pass an examination in mathematics, French, history and the like and yet not know how to spell his own language or write properly shows that something is amiss. It has, hitherto, been supposed that the work of the German Gymnasias and Realschulen left little to be desired in the training of the students entering the universities. It was certainly so once, but here also there has been a change for the worse. It is a matter of common statement that very many of the students in the German universities are very poorly trained, and, consequently, ill prepared for the courses they undertake. This is the special note of an address delivered in August last by Professor Elter of Bonn, who deplores the change that has come over the German universities because of the low preliminary attainments of the students, for it fills up the lecture rooms with idlers of both sexes, who are able to appreciate or understand only the more popular of the lecture courses.
