Not illustrated. 1915 Excerpt: .the fact that few of these charges require to be recorded from day to day in the garage and those who desire to reduce such record keeping to a minimum may confine it to the items under the heading of Maintenance, with the possible addition of the electrical energy required for charging each machine. In other words, all the other items which are not of daily occurrence will be available in the bookkeeping department of the organization as a matter of routine record; these are, Fixed Charges, Insurance, Licenses, Garage Supplies, Labor Pay-Roll, Rent, Light, Heat, Water, Telephone, Driver s PayRoll and Office Expense. It will be evident that a very simple card system will serve the purpose of recording the daily garage operations above suggested. It must also be apparent that the less recording to be done in the garage the better for the accuracy of the accounting. An inspection of a number of the record sheets employed in relation to the electric vehicle equipment of several central stations disclosed a great variety of sub-headings which, while perhaps necessary to serve the immediate purposes of those in charge, might be readily grouped under the sub-headings recommended in Schedule A; and which for the purposes of illustration are shown herewith together with the reference number indicating the proper location of each in Schedule A. It will be evident therefore, that the layout of Schedule A is comprehensive enough to embrace almost any charge which can be...
