Forgotten Books, 2017. Paperback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand . Excerpt from The History of Curries Mountain: An Old New Brunswick Volcano Sedimentary Rocks. - The rocks of this character found associated with the volcanics consist of conglomerates, sand stones and shales, of which those below the volcanics are noticeable for their intensely colour and calcareous nature, while those above are as uniformly grey and non-calcareous. The former are identical with those which in various other parts of the Province occupy a similar position and are referable to the Lower Carboniferous system, while the latter represent the Millstone Grit formation or Lower Division of the Coal Measures. The latter are remarkable as mainly made up of well-rounded white quartz pebbles. The red rocks may to some extent be seen along the Back Road where this makes its ascent to the hills behind Curries Mountain, but better in the r l. Fne referred to above or along the steep hillsides leading to Rock? nd. From the height of the hills, the horizontal attitude of the beds, and the position of the exposures, it may be inferred that they have a thickness of at least five hundred feet. The grey beds are not seen in the immediate vicinity of the mountain, but come into view on either side, in one direction becoming continuous with the great Carboniferous tract of southern New Brunswick, in the other helping to mark the northern escarpment of that formation to and up the valley of the K eswick River. They are noticeable, in addition to their coarseness and silicious character, for the extent to which they have been planed and even polished by glacial action. I oorly preserved stems of plants are occasion ally found ih the red as well...
