Condition: New. Publisher/Verlag: LAP Lambert Academic Publishing | Process optimization, chemical profile and antioxidant activity of obtained extracts | Coriander seeds have been used in traditional medicine for the treatment of various ailments. Taking into account that operational conditions may influence the chemical composition, thus optimization of supercritical extraction was performed. Influences of three different extraction parameters were explored while optimization of the process was performed by using Box-Behnken experimental design (BBD) in combination with response surface methodology (RSM). Furthermore, chemical composition and antioxidant activity of obtained extracts were examined. This has shown the correlation between the composition of extracts and detected activity. Obtained results demonstrate the possibility of application of resulting extracts in food processing as an antioxidant agents. | Format: Paperback | Language/Sprache: english | 52 pp.
