Of all the disorders to which we are heir it seems that dental decay strikes us most frequently and universally. In the popular mind it is one of the most disturbing disorders, and, of course, in dental practice it is perhaps the most universally frequent. What causes decay of the teeth is a practical problem, and especially, if the answer to that can be found, how can we control the cause when we discover it? I believe you are familiar with the current conception regarding the factors that induce decay of the teeth. Let me repeat them simply to be sure we have a working basis to proceed upon. The current theory would, condensed, very briefly put it this way: The acid substance made on tooth surface repeatedly at a particular point causes solution of..
