Reviews

This book is definitely not effortless to start on reading through but extremely fun to learn. Better then never, though i am quite late in start reading this one. It is extremely difficult to leave it before concluding, once you begin to read the book.

NEAR the grave of the poet Brizeux, in the cemetery of the Breton town of Lorient, is a great stone cross bearing the simple inscription: ERNEST HELLO. Anyone passing that way some twenty years ago might have found on the grave, not only flowers, but a little stocking, a child's shoe the grateful and touching ex-voto of some simple peasant who felt convinced that he whose prayers, affection, and money, had ever been at the service of the poor during his life, still cared for them, and thought of them, and prayed for them, in the silent world beyond. Nothing endures like love; and the memory of the scholar and man of genius, who was also so good a friend, lingered long about Keroman and Lorient. Ernest Hello was born at Lorient in 1828. His father was a magistrate Life, Science, and Art of high standing, a just and upright man, greatly respected in the neighborhood. His mother, a clever, handsome, proud woman, possessing much nobility of character, was almost too careful of her delicate little son, and it seems probable that her excessive precautions did but aggravate his weak health. Ernest's childhood was passed on the old family estate of Keroman, near Lorient. Beyond the wooded farms, where the peasants spoke Breton, lay the desolate landes and the grey sea. He loved these solitudes as a boy, and in manhood he returned to them to spend the best years of his life in strenuous literary work. Hello was educated first at Rennes, then at the Lycee Louis le Grand, Paris. He studied for the Bar, but threw up his profession because his fellow-barristers decided in conference...
