Forgotten Books, United States, 2015. Paperback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand . Excerpt from Pastimes With the Muse Introduction. Ye gods and goddesses! assist my song. It would be sacreligious to begin A poem, and most blasphemously wrong, To dare to scale the Pierian heights - a sin, As henious as Prometheus, among The gods committed, when, if he had been Skilled in the modern boodler s art and culture, His liver ne er had been food for the vulture. A sin, I mean, to scribble poetry, Without a formal invocation, first, Of the gods. History is said to be Philosophy, in which all should be versed, Teaching by methods used successfully, By all of the best teachers, and the worst; Using examples; and, since no shrewd thief, Would, like Pometheus, be brought to grief, So I would use the light of history, And shun the ruts of literary mope; Homer invokes the muse, and so must I, As fervently as Milton, and as Pope. Since Homer set the copy, I must try To imitate him, if I e er would hope To shine a star, in the bright galaxy, That flashes in the literary sky. Both Pope and Milton supplicate the Muse, In such a solemn, serious, earnest way, That saints of Charles the Second s age, might use The formula, when they were wont to pray, And think it orthodox; if I refuse To follow in the track of such as they, I would subject myself to the suspicion That I am not a skilful rhetorician.
