Excerpt from What Is Good Instruction: An Address Delivered Before the Associate Alumni of the Merrimack Normal Institute, at Their Third Annual Meeting, Sept. 1, 1852 It remains to be added that good instruction requires enthusiasm in the pursuit. The teacher must feel and act as if the pursuit of the scholar was the most useful and practical, the most necessary and profitable, and the most interesting and delightful in the world, and he cannot well avoid doing so if he aims faithfully at the requisites already mentioned. There is nothing so easily diffused as this spirit of enthusiasm, and when it once prevails among scholars half the labor of teaching is accomplished, and their progress made more certain and encouraging.
