And all things are teeming with life and with light, --That the whole of the house was thrown into affright, For no soul could conceive what was gone with the Knight! It seems he had taken A light breakfast--bacon, An egg--with a little broil d haddock--at most A round and a half of some hot butter d toast, With a slice of cold sirloin from yesterday s roast, And then--let me see!--He had two--perhaps three Cups (with sugar and cream) of strong Gunpowder tea, With a spoonful in each of some choice can de vie.--Which with nine out of ten would perhaps disagree.--In fact, I and my son Mix black with our Hyson, Neither having the nerves of a bull, or a bison, And both hating brandy like what some call pison. No matter for that--He had call d for his hat, With the brim that I ve said was so broad and so flat, And his specs with the tortoiseshell rim, and his cane With the crutch-handled top, which lie used to sustain His steps in his walks, and to poke in the shrubs And the grass, when unearthing his worms and his grubs--Tims arm d, he set out on a ramble--alack! He set out, poor dear Soul!--but he never came back. First dinner-bell rang Out its euphonious clang At five--foiks kept early hours then--and the Last Ding-dong d,...
