Excerpt from Suggestions as to Methods of Shortening the Time Required to Finally Adjudicate Applications for Patents: A Paper Read January, 28, 1915, Before the Examining Corps of the United States Patent Office These pioneer inventions also bring about an increased activity in a large number of related arts. A wireless telegraph station must have its source of high frequency current, its structural towers of great height, its special conductors of high insulation. In fact, these new conditions have brought about an increased activity in almost every branch of the electrical art. A ying machine and an automobile must each have a gas engine, with its electric igniting means, its gas mixing apparatus, and its multitude of related devices pertaining to many mechanical and metallurgy arts. All these take on special designs and refinements incident to their new use, and bring their multitude of applications to the various divisions of the office having in charge the cases relating to these various arts. The art that must be searched is increasing by leaps and bounds, and reclassification, imperative as it is.
