Createspace Independent Publishing Platform, 2017. Paperback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Unbeknownst to all and in the greatest secrecy, a parallel technological industry was developed on the basis of reverse engineering of extraterrestrial spacecraft previously obtained by the military. To fully understand this situation, we must go back in time and look at how military authorities treated the UFO question. From 1947 to 1969, the Air Force took charge of the management of the UFO phenomenon through three subsequent study projects: Sign, Grudge, and Blue Book. Despite the enormous number of reports treated by analysts, the results of each project remained negative as to the possibility of any extraterrestrial presence linked to these observations. However, rumors surrounding the possible recovery of an extraterrestrial spacecraft by the Air Force quickly increased the curiosity of the American population. Only a few months after the alleged Roswell events, where military authorities declared that the debris recovered came from a weather balloon; President Truman's administration established the National Security Council as well as the Central Intelligence Agency. Was there a link? Was setting up this crisis management structure to ensure security surrounding events linked to any extraterrestrial presence? Despite the official version saying that it was all related to the Communist Threat, many leaked documents that date back from this time period tell a very different story. After each study project, the U.S. Air Force came to the conclusion that UFOs were nothing but misinterpreted sightings of airplanes, planets, luminous reflections or mass hysteria. The only problem with these conclusions is that many people having seen UFOs were totally credible witnesses. Some of them were military or civilian pilots with hundreds of hours of flight. Looking back sixty years after some of these events, it is...
