Excerpt from Violent and Drug Trafficking Crimes; The Bailey Decision s Effect on Prosecutions Under 924(c): Hearing Before the Committee on the Judiciary, United States Senate, One Hundred Fourth Congress, Second Session We will also hear later from the Justice Department regarding the administration s proposal, as well as from past and present law enforcement officials who have had an opportunity to deal with the drugs and guns on the streets and in the courts. I believe that we can move legislation before this Congress adjourns. There is a broad consensus to act and to respond to the Bailey decision. We all want to communicate one very important message to violent criminals: When you join guns and drug trafficking, we are coming after you. Let me just finally conclude before I turn to my colleague, the distinguished Senator from North Carolina, Senator Helms, with this one additional comment, and that is that we are seeking guidance from the witnesses today. I think there is a broad consensus that we need to address this Supreme Court decision. The Court, in essence, invited Congress to do this. There is a broad consensus, I think, in this country that violent offenders, those who use a gun in the commission of a felony, need to have very, very severe sentences, that those sentences need to be enhanced if they do, in fact, commit the crime with a gun. I think there is also a very broad consensus in this country that the use of drugs, drug sales and guns also must mandate an enhanced penalty. This is an issue that I have personally been dealing with for now 15 or 16 years. When...
