Createspace, United States, 2013. Paperback. Book Condition: New. 229 x 152 mm. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Graduation from high school, college, or graduate school projects a person into a very dissimilar type of world, one seen from an entirely new perspective. Dealing with the new people and with co-workers professionally on a daily basis should be an exciting and satisfying experience, but, in reality, can be also filled with challenges and frustrations. The purpose of this book is make information available to graduates in order to prepare them to professionally handle any provocation that may arise within the context of their next endeavor. Procedures change. Products change. Personnel within organizations change. Even customers change. However, the one thing that does not change is human nature; namely (1) Everyone wants to be appreciated, and (2) Nobody likes to be wrong. These concepts are elaborated on in a variety of ways in order to help graduates internalize what is necessary to implement these two aspects of human nature, enabling them to reach new heights and fulfill more goals. This little book touches on the basics of human nature, including information on (1) attitude, (2) human relation skills, (3) communication skills, all validated by quotes from the sages. Top Ten Lists are included which cover Ways to Create the Life of Your Dreams, Rules for the Game of Life, Achieving a Life Beyond Balance, Ways to Go For It, plus more.
