

Masks (Hardback)

By Patricia Caviglia

iUniverse, United States, 2010. Hardback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Masks tells the story of two teenagers struggling to be normal together, despite their dysfunctional families. Rebecca Jacobs is an unremarkable teenage girl—at least, that is what she wants the world to believe. But her private life is made public when her verbally abusive father embarrasses her at a school dance, and soon gossip and whispers buzz throughout the school. One of the witnesses to Rebecca's public humiliation is David Miller, the high school bad boy. Unsure about how to help her, he settles for becoming her friend. Rebecca and David grow closer with each passing day, eventually falling in love. Rebecca's main priority is keeping her relationship with David a secret from her overprotective parents, but there are other problems she must also confront. First, Rebecca's best friend tries to steal David away. Then, Rebecca is forced to face David's violent behavior, which closely resembles her father's temper. Rebecca's worst enemy, though, is herself. In her desperate need to keep her home life separate from her love life, she lies to her parents and to David....
