All worthy fame is won by men of faith. Modern Illustrations. John Milton, the great hero of politicians and patriots, was he not pre-eminently a man of faith? His unseen ideal commonwealth, his England of the future, was to him what the land of promise was to Abraham. And was not Columbus, the hero of the man of science, a child of faith, too? It was belief in an unseen America that carried Columbus across the ocean. -- George Dawson. So William of Orange had faith in an unseen free Holland, and the Pilgrim fathers in an unseen free church, and Lincoln in a free and united country. So Leverrier trusted in his calculations and wrote to Galle, Direct your telescope to a point on the ecliptic in the constellation of Aquarius, in longitude 3260, and you will find within a degree of that place a new planet, looking like a star of about the ninth magnitude and having a perceptible disk; and the planet Neptune, which no eye had yet seen, was found precisely as indicated. This is faith in action; how does the writer illustrate faith in thought? By the great and primary postulate of faith. --Dean Alford. By the fundamental truth, both of religion and science, that the worlds were framed by the word of God, matter being caused to spring from nothing, so that things which are seen were not made of things which do appear....
