RareBooksClub. Paperback. Book Condition: New. This item is printed on demand. Paperback. 70 pages. Original publisher: Washington, D. C. : The Office, 2001. OCLC Number: (OCoLC)48058937 Subject: Forced migration. Excerpt: . . . Figure 3: Threats to Internally Displaced Persons, 2001 Source: GAO survey. According to human rights officials, based on existing international humanitarian and human rights law, international organizations act to help ensure the internally displaced have protection and are afforded the fundamental right to be free from the threats noted in Figure 3. In some instance (such as in Kosovo), organizations are explicitly mandated by the United Nations and their governing boards to provide protection and assistance to internally displaced persons. To accomplish this, the organizations undertake protection activities in almost all countries we surveyed. For example, as shown in figure 4, in 63 percent of the countries, the organizations reported that to a great or very great extent they are engaging and meeting with both government and opposition forces to try to get them to respect the rights of internally displaced persons. In 79 percent of the countries, international organizations indicated they are to some extent providing the displaced with information about a voluntary return to their homes. In 90 percent of the countries, international organizations said they are, to a small extent or greater, establishing systems to document human rights violations of the displaced.
