Brand New Book ***** Print on Demand *****.Excerpt from Rush-Light Stories Twilight was falling and the lights of the Strand began to glow like fireflies above the hurrying throngs. In the distance, the great square revealed a space of sky where the fires of sunset contended with the fog and smoke of the city. From its midst, a column soared upward, while below crouched the lions of Trafalgar, majestic in their repose. Patiently they submitted their backs to the adventurous gamins who rode them ingloriously, or sat between their outstretched paws, as once a Queen of Egypt rested in the arms of the Sphinx. In an old house, overlooking this scene, there lived a French savant and collector of Greek and Egyptian antiquities. The walls of Monsieur Aristide s study presented an unbroken array of chests and cabinets. Some contained rare collections of Greek and Syrian glass, which glowed in the fading light like jeweled forms of opal, ruby and sapphire.
