Brand New Book  Print on Demand .HEARTLAND The action starts with an almost Twilight Zone set up: a young, Eastern man has quit his job, leaving his wife and young children without warning. He drives to the Midwest and randomly picks the home of a family to see if they will allow him to undertake a personal experiment. He wants find out who he nice people are and who the nasty people are so that he can transform the nasty ones into nice people. A family allows him to live with them and meet their friends and the boss of one. The daughter of the family is troubled and the young man talks her into a more humble and loving outlook. When he encounters the boss and tries to transform him the boss tells him to leave town or he will fire the friend that introduced them. The experience leaves the young man sobered and he realizes he has a struggle of his own that needs sorting out. He was adopted and not treated well as a child so he has to run away from intimacy. He also...
