Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Excerpt from International Law, Some Problems of the War: A Lecture Delivered Before the University of Oxford in the Hall of All Souls College on October 30, 1915 There was no Chair of International Law at the time of the Napoleonic Wars or at that of the Crimea, nor can I discover that any lectures were then delivered on the Law of Nations. The mild hostilities of the Boer War, the only occasion on which this country has been a belligerent since the Chair was instituted, raised no questions at all comparable with those that face us to-day. In the present war there are topics to hand in plenty, anxious topics that all demand consideration. An attempt will be made to discuss the greater part of them, more or less in detail, in the course of lectures which it is proposed to deliver during the current year. This afternoon there is no time to do more than to submit to you some observations on particular points of importance. On some of these points it is premature as...
