The selection of the stones at the quarry has hitherto cost me not more than 10 to 15 per cent, extra. 5. The Roof.--A very few words must suffice to dispose of this subject, having regard to our limitations as to time. It is not my intention to speak of flat roofs of fireproof construction, and covered with impermeable materials of various kinds; obviously they are rarely required, and when wanted, only need to be well executed to answer the purpose intended. But the ordinary house-roof is a thing that forms a hat to a building; it may or may not have projecting eaves, or a brim to the hat, but is always presumed to rise above the greater part of the topmost rooms, and to form an air space protective of the inmates from the extremes of heat and cold. That this is but a presumption is, in many cases, only too true, and the cruelty of putting servants in slate, or even metal-covered attics, within a few inches of the outer air, is often forgotten alike by the builder who sells, and the master who buys his family residence. A sufficient air space between the ceiling and the roof is indispensable for dryness and for the preservation of the timbers of the roof. The...
