FBC LTD, 2017. Paperback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand . Excerpt from Rudolph Schleiden and the Visit to Richmond: April 25, 1861 Government that when the peace commissioners of Virginia to the conference at Washington and Lincoln to remove the Federal troops from Fort Sumter, the President replied: Why not? If you will guarantee to me the State of Virginia I shall remove the troops. A State for a fort is no bad business. The fall of Fort Sumter and the threatening prospect of a general war had cast a gloom over Washington, and none felt it more keenly than Schleiden. The chief interest of Bremen in America lay in the carrying trade with Europe. The red and white banner of the little Hanseatic Republic floated from the masts of more ships in American ports than the flag of any other foreign nation excepting Great Britain. To avert civil war and the consequent disruption of trade seemed to Schleiden a foremost duty. He became, therefore, an earnest advocate of mediation, but toward the end of April, 1861, the planned mediation of the diplomatic corps failed. In fact, on April 23 Seward published a communication from the State Department to the governor of Maryland, which declared that the differences between the States could not be submitted to any foreign arbitrament under any circumstances. Schleiden thereupon offered his services to Seward in the hope that he alone might be able to mediate an armistice which would maintain a peaceful status until Congress could assemble. On the morning of April 24 Schleiden discussed the question with Seward. As Alexander H. Stephens, Vice President of the Southern Confederacy, was then in Richmond, Schleiden proposed to journey to the capital of Virginia and commence confidential...
