Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Excerpt from The City as a Biological Community: The Urban Ecosystem The consequence of biological development for man has been to limit his biochemistry to a predictable course, to limit his physical development to within a close range, and to define his repertory of behavioral responses to within a finite limit. Imprinting, sexual identification, and socialization operate in man with all the vigor and resoluteness found in less intelligent species, with the added complication of spoken-written language and its subsequent toolmaking explosion. One need not invent mathematics or the computer to throw a rock at a telephone pole, even though this is a complicated ballistics problem, but mathematics is essential to fire-control radar gunnery. Radar-controlled gunnery. Is no more wonderful than throwing a rock, but its principles relate to speech-language-toolmaking rather than to the innate biology of the rock thrower. And more importantly, the rock thrower has not changed a whit simply because he can use radar-controlled gunnery.
