Forgotten Books, 2017. Paperback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand . Excerpt from Kings and Kern Canyons and the Giant Forest of California Then the ride up the foot of the canyon - that splendid furrow plowed by the glacier - through flowers and meadows, by lines of lateral moraines, among incense cedars and sugar pines, and beside smooth, hard granite walls lifted defiantly to the heavens to feet high, while the river, three times the volume of the Merced, shouts as if glad of its escape into sun shine out of the dark canyons where it was born - what surprises the ride has, and what enjoyment! You must be a veteran of the mountains if you can make that journey for the first time without a tumult of emotion - or a crick in your neck from looking up. It is part of the spurious culture of today to be, or affect to be, proof against surprise, and to stifle emotion as a mark of crudeness, but happy the man who keeps fresh the fountains of feeling in the presence of great Nature. He will enjoy these vast solitudes, and not be ashamed if the very greatness and splendor of what he sees wrings a cry of admiring wonder from his lips. Dr. Le Conte, critical, scholarly, inured to scenes of grandeur in the mountains, says of his experiences in this region: The trail becomes steeper and rougher, cascades and falls more frequent and more beautiful, and the scenery grander and more impressive, until finally as we approached the summit I could not refrain from screaming with delight. Standing on the narrow shelf at the summit of Mt. Stanford overlooking the canyon, and feet above the sea, Dr....
