Forgotten Books, United States, 2015. Paperback. Book Condition: New. 229 x 152 mm. Language: English . Brand New Book ***** Print on Demand *****.Excerpt from Agricultural Research in New Hampshire: Annual Report of the Director of the New Hampshire Agricultural Experiment Station for the Year 1931 In times such as these every public agency must feel more keenly than ever the duty to fulfill its public trust: to return to the general good a greater sum in ultimate values than it has taken out. Such return is often difficult to measure accurately, especially in the research field, where we must often grope and fail. But it is only through constant experimentation that agriculture has advanced to its present levels, and only by the same means can we continue to progress. If public research seems costly, one may well consider how much more expensive and frequently impossible is research on the part of the individual farmer. And if public research seems inconclusive at times, it must be remembered that the observations of lone and untrained men would be hopelessly so. Civilization is committed to the laboratory and to trained research; and the pathway ahead out of economic depression would only be...
