The Presidential election was in the final month and polls had the two candidates in a dead heat. Although wars in both Afghanistan and Iraq had come to an end, President Morgan's administration had lost the support of the majority of voters. A second term for the President now seemed almost impossible. New problems arose due to bombings in California and possible connection to the North Korean's. The events there were now complicating the fragile political landscape. The country found itself on the brink of war and President Morgan's administration was divided on a course of action. The new Director of the FBI, Frank Fitzgerald, found his organization at odds with the CIA and both men pressured the President for control of the investigation. FBI Special Agents Blair Adams and Brandon Booth were assigned to head the investigation in Los Angeles. Little did they know that the CIA had sent a special black ops Agent Tony Kim to thwart their progress? Kim's actions would affect both the case and endanger their lives. How would Blair and her partner fair against the CIA plot? Could President Morgan pull his team and country together in what could be his darkest hour? Who had been responsible for the disaster and could the FBI recover in time to thwart escalating tensions? This is the fourth book in Mr. Aued's Blair Adams series of FBI Thrillers. He has been recognized as one of the top 40 Michigan Author's.
