Excerpt from Glastonbury Three thousand miles away, across the Atlantic, in the south western part of England, is the town for which ours was named. It is an old and famous town was old and famous long before Columbus discovered America. It is famous because there was built the first Christian church in Britain. Many believe that it was built by Joseph of Arimathea, who came from Jerusalem in the year 60 A. D. To preach the gospel to the natives of Britain, who were then pagans. That little church has been burned and rebuilt more than once, but its ruins stand there now. Beside the little church, there was built a larger one, and a great monastery or abbey in which, for many years, was kept a famous school for boys and young men. St. Patrick of Ireland was once abbot of that school, for in those days all Christian churches were of the Catholic faith.
