Excerpt: . the dog. chapter I. breeding, feeding and lodging. Recall the traveller, whose altered form Has borne the buffet of the mountain storm; And who will first his fond impatience meet? His faithful dog s already at his feet! Yes; though the porter spurn him from the door, Though all that knew him know his face no more, His faithful dog shall tell his joy to each With that mute eloquence which passeth speech. Rogers. Dogs, in common with all domestic animals, require crossing after the second generation. This is the more necessary in the case of domesticated animals, because, otherwise, the work of procreation would often be effected by those of inferior physical and spiritual endowments, and degeneracy would naturally follow; an evil less apt to occur among animals in their wild state, because there the favours of the female are fought for...
