Excerpt: . . . image in coincidence, the range is read from the scale. This general description applies to all of the instruments except one of those submitted. The weights varied from 18 to 24 pounds, and with tripod without cases 22 to 30 pounds, and 22 to 88 pounds for instruments with tripod, adjusting bar and cases. While one could carry this weight for a short distance, the Board has recommended one man to transport the instrument and one the tripod and adjusting bar. NAVAL MILITIA LAW. R PADGETT, of the House Naval Committee, introduced and M the House passed a bill to place the Naval Militia upon practically the same footing as the Organized Militia (land forces). The phraseology of the act follows very closely those presented to the Congress by the National Guard Association in 1903 and 1908. The bill even contains provision for extra-territorial service of the Naval Militia in the exact terms found in the Organized Militia law, namely; that the Naval Militia so called shall continue to serve during the term so specified either within or without the territory of the United States, unless sooner relieved by order of the President. It is a good bill, and deserves the support of every citizen. It should be passed. V Men ought to write from every part of the country to their members of Congress, asking their support for H. R. 8667 in the Senate. The Naval Militia is an indispensable part of our...
