PROLOGUE 14 May 1988 QUALIFYING FOR MONACO GRAND PRIX The spine tingling spectacle of the late Ayrton Senna on a qualifying lap provided some of the most thrilling moments in the history of the sport. There has never been a faster driver over a single lap - his record of 65 pole positions is unlikely to ever be broken - nor has anyone thought so deeply about it. When he talked about his memorable lap, the one that left the most indelible impression on his exceptional mind, Senna's eyes shone with a faraway look and his voice quavered with intensity. Suddenly I realised that I was no longer driving the car consciously. I was kind of driving by instinct, only I was in a different dimension. I was way over the limit; but still I was able to find even more. It frightened me, because I realised I was well beyond my conscious understanding. - the late, great Ayrton Senna * from FORMULA 1: The Autobiography Edited by Gerald Donaldson (and first published in the UK in 2002 by Wedenfeld and Nicolson). Thanks for the great gift, dad. Bet you'd love to read my new book, this true labour of love. Check out this video released by McLaren (// to see Gerald Donaldson and Jo Ramirez discussing Ayrton Senna's finest hour around the winding and narrow streets of Monaco. Incidentally, it was Donaldson's original interview that provided the inspiration for the fascinating book Overdrive : Formula One in the Zone by Clyde...
