I see one song upon your piano, said Horace, with a slight hesitation, which I know. And, if you sing thai, I must contradict you, and say your compass is not very limited. I see which you mean, she returned, with a quick little nod, as if in haste to dismiss the subject, yet speaking gently as of something she loved, but I sing that song only to myself. To continue our catechism, she went on, her eyes brightening again, perhaps reflecting some inexplicable brightness which had come into Horace Hohan s at her last words, I can read a little. In fact, I have read the third volumes of most of the novels that ever were written; I ve left off wasting my time over the first and second,...
