The Influence of the Environment on the Successful Completion of Construction Projects

By Kethy Abraham

GRIN Verlag GmbH. Paperback. Book Condition: New. Paperback. 56 pages. Dimensions: 8.3in. x 5.8in. x 0.1in. Research Paper from the year 2010 in the subject Environmental Sciences, grade: A, The University of Chicago, language: English, abstract: All projects must take place within an environment. The environment represents in this case, are the external conditions that affect the development of any project. Therefore these conditions may be economic, political, technological, or social. They make up the environment within which any project operates. A project will in one way or the other be impacted by these factors during the course of the project cycle (Fewings, 2005). These factors will either impact the project negatively or positively and in the long run affect the completion of the project. In real scenarios in project management, the external conditions are risk factors which affect the completion of the project. They act as risk factors because they will affect how the project is carried out. In the case that these factors are not mitigated then it is not possible to have a successful project (Halpin and Senior, 2010). People and communities also stay within the environment. Development initiatives when initiated have an effect on the people who...
