Forgotten Books, 2018. Paperback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand . Excerpt from The Revue, 1919 Any leaders of Alabama Methodism have for a number of years seen the great opportunity for a male college in which the united strength of the Alabama and of the North Alabama Conferences is centered. During the sessions of the above named conferences in November of 1917 a decision was all but unanimously reached to make use of such an opportunity through the consolidation of the Southern University at Greensboro, Alabama, and of Birmingham College situated in the heart of Greater Birmingham. On May 30, 1918, the actual consolidation of these noted and worthy institutions on the former campus of Birmingham College was effected by the action of the Board of Commissioners representing both conferences. As was eminently fitting, the name chosen for this new and yet old institution is Birmingham-southern College. At this time the president, who had been previously elected, was authorized by the Commission to proceed with the organization of a faculty, the preparation and publication of a catalog, and to take other proper steps for the Opening of the session of 1918-19. These essential steps of organization had scarcely been taken when the War Department from Washington placed before the colleges throughout the country new and extensive plans for military training. Birmingham-southern College entered heartily and loyally into these plans, and under government supervision prepared for the training of a unit of the Students Army Training Corps. This training along with the normal work of the college was carried on faithfully till the armistice was signed and the S. A. T. C. Was demobilized. Following the demobilization of the S. A. T. C. A unit of the Reserve Officers Training...
